Marshall University is a state-supported institution accredited by North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. The University has eight colleges; College of Business; College of Education and Human Services; College of Fine Arts; College of Liberal Arts; College of Science; Community and Technical College; Graduate College, College of Nursing and Health Professions, and a School of Medicine. Marshall University enrolls approximately 16,000 students and has 460 full-time faculty members. The College of Education and Human Services is the largest college at Marshall University, with 105 full-time faculty in three schools; the School of Education, headed by a Chair, the School of Human Services, headed by two division chairs, and the Graduate School of Education and Professional Development, headed by a Dean (South Charleston, WV). These Schools house Counseling; Educational Leadership; Family & Consumer Sciences; Health, Physical Education and Recreation; Instructional Technology; Safety Technology; Elementary Education; Secondary Education, Special Education; Educational Foundations; and Adult and Technical and Education. The College enrolls 2400 undergraduate and over 2000 graduate students. The Teacher Education program is NCATE accredited; four other programs are nationally accredited. The college offers BA, MA, MS, EdS, and EdD degrees. My responsibilities include faculty, budget and programs in the three schools. The College also houses the Autism Training Center (I served on the Board), the Higher Education Learning Problems Center (HELP Center) (I served on the Board), the Learning Resources Center (Center Director reports to my office), Testing Center (Center Director reported to my office), and the Child Development Academy (I served as President of the Board).
